Sanchita Sengupta writes like someone who has lived every emotion twice.

Sanchita Sengupta is the literary world's newest quiet sensation. An author who brings elegance, emotion, and edge into every sentence she writes.

Sanchita Sengupta is an emerging author and poet whose work feels less like writing and more like an intimate conversation with the soul. She stepped into the literary world with her debut novel Half of Her, a bold and intricate exploration of the rarely discussed realm of twin-flame connections. Blending spiritual romance with raw human truth far from anything religious or mythical, Sanchita crafts a story rooted in real experiences, making the extraordinary feel achingly familiar. She built her poetic foundation with O-Men, a critically appreciated collection where every poem is delicately stitched to the next, yet powerful enough to stand on its own. Her signature style, lyrical, haunting, and deeply reflective, earned her recognition beyond the page. Her poem "Through the Mirror's Stitch" was selected for display at the prestigious Red Hall Exhibition in the UK, marking her international presence as a poet whose words stay with readers long after the final line. She has been a co-author of several anthologies, including Silent Verses, Fragments of Forever, Of Petals Pages and Peace, Woven in Verse, and more. Sanchita's creative journey continues to rise. Her recently launched novel, Letters From Suryatal, digs into romantic suspense that doesn't just entertain, it gets under your skin. Set in the cold, unforgiving mountains, this story drags readers through longing, secrets, and a slow-burn tension that tightens with every chapter.

A small glimpse of the story -

When Meera, a sharp-eyed newspaper editor, begins receiving letters, she thinks they're just another marketing gimmick, until she realizes every message repeats the same chilling line: "Meet me by the lake. I'll tell you everything."

Drawn into a trail of clues that pull her away from home and deeper into a buried past, Meera stumbles upon clues she never imagined. What if the murdered soul at the heart of the mystery was woven into Meera's own bloodline?

But Rishi Thakur complicates everything who came into her life after her traumatic breakup. The celebrated writer, impossible to read. In one moment, he feels like destiny; in the next, he feels like danger. Meera can't decide what scares her more, falling in love with him or suspecting he's the one she's hunting.

As secrets coil tighter around them and the lake witnesses the truth, Meera must face a devastating question:

Can the man who steals your breath also be the one who took a life?

For anyone who craves romance with teeth and thrillers with a heartbeat, this one is going to hit hard.

Q. Congratulations on your wins Payal Mam, What inspired you to participate in Mrs. India 2025?

My drive to do something for my state Uttarpradesh & my country India was a paramount inspiration for me & also my willingness to do something which proves that you can dream at any age. You can chase your dream at any point of life & then I am a mother I wanted my daughter & many more girls to understand that it's never too late to make your identity, to fly as high as you want to. The only thing you need is dedication & complete faith in your plan.

Q. Can you share some of your social initiatives and their impact?

I am involved hugely on working towards a girl child. Making them aware of the importance of education, making them aware of importance of building a career for themselves. I also keep on working for kids, donating clothes, food, stationery and being involved in their life so they know if they have any trouble they have someone to approach for help. I also make parents of my village aware who are not sending their daughters to school because of gender discrimination, the importance of education for a girl child. There is so much to do & even if I am able to bring change in one girl's life, I will be calling all the hard work worth it.

Q. What motivated you to pursue social work and philanthropy?

Well from a very long time I have been helping people around in my village which is near to my home. Especially when it comes to children, I know so many kids who have been molested & abused but they couldn't do anything because they did not know whom to approach, they did not know what exactly was happening to them. All this & so much more like girls of the village not allowed to study impacted me a lot & it was a major concern for me & hence this is the reason I wanted to be involved in social causes & I truly believe when God Blesses you with everything you have to raise your standard of giving.

Q. You are a Marathon Runner , Would you like to share your experience of that.

When I was in my school I was an athlete, but then everything stopped once I left the school. I got busy in life. But when I turned 40 I ran my first marathon in my city Kanpur & since then nothing could stop me. I realised that running gives me happiness & peace of mind. It makes me feel happy.

MEET PAYAL AGARWAL DAS: HER INSPIRING JOURNEY FROM A SCHOOL TEACHER TO A BUSINESSWOMAN

I'm Payal Agarwal Das, a determined business entrepreneur from Kolkata, West Bengal. I've come a long way from my humble beginnings. My life took a dramatic turn when my father passed away in a bike accident when I was just in Class 8. Despite the challenges I faced, my mother's encouragement helped me pursue my dreams, and I became a strong, independent woman.

Q. Can you tell us about your early days and what motivated you to become the person you are today?

My journey began with working as a home tutor and representative leader for Avon company during my college days. It was the immense support and encouragement from my mother that made me a strong, independent girl. My hard work paid off when I received an award from the Managing Director of Avon company on stage, not once but twice.

WHEN A WOMAN
 CHOOSES HERSELF, SUCCESS FOLLOWS.

Q. How did your career evolve after your graduation?

After completing my graduation, I worked in a multinational company before getting married. I later pursued higher education, completing my TTC from AJCS College. In the given course my husband had supported me and gave his full guidance. I then worked as a teacher in a pre-primary school and later joined Delhi Public School, where I worked for a long time before leaving to focus on my family. My husband's moral support while doing my jobs played a crucial role in my journey.

Q. What inspired you to start your own business?

After taking a break to raise my daughter, I started working as a freelancer and job consultant during the COVID-19 pandemic. Many people were looking for jobs, and I worked tirelessly to help them. This experience gave me the confidence to start my own company, Shine Consultancy, which deals with job placements, home tutoring, and guidance for professional courses. Even During Corona times my son was born but that did not hamper my dreams I always had a mindset of being an independent woman again.

Q. Your journey hasn't been without its challenges. Can you tell us about some of the obstacles you've faced?

Many people taunted me, believing that a full-time homemaker and mother of two couldn't be a successful businesswoman. But it was a big challenge for me, and I won the challenge through my hard work and dedication. When I decided to leave my teaching job to prioritize my daughter, many people assumed I'd become a 'full-time homemaker' and that my career was over. And when I ventured into freelancing, I encountered another wave of skepticism – the notion that a teacher couldn't possibly make the leap to being a businesswoman. But I knew my story was far from over and successfully became a Businesswoman

Q. What recognition have you received for your work?

My hard work paid off when I was awarded the Global Business Woman of the Year 2025 by the International Woman Awards. I had also done my first job fair exhibition, which gave me professional recognition in the field of business.

Q. What recognition have you received for your work?

I'm often disheartened by the notion that working from home as a homemaker isn't "real work". As the founder of Shine Consultancy, I've learned that hard work and dedication come in many forms.

Women don't work just for financial gain; we work to be independent, contribute to our families, by being Independent we can help our families in crisis also

Q. What message would you like to convey to women out there?

Through my story, I want to tell women that they should never underestimate themselves. If there's a will, there's a way. In today's world, it's very important for each and every woman to have their own identity, whether in a job or business. It's never too late to fulfill your dreams; age is just a number.

A Symbol of Selfless Leadership: A Conversation with Mama

Service, Sacrifice, and the Power of the NSS

In an era where personal gain often takes center stage, Mama stands as a beacon of selfless devotion. From donating her very first salary to COVID-19 relief to transforming students into sensitive citizens and leading youth leadership, she is a prominent educator and youth leader from Sambalpur, Odisha recognized for her extensive work in fostering student leadership and driving community development. These remarkable outcomes stand as a powerful testament to Mama for her tireless dedication, strategic leadership, and compassionate commitment to holistic community health and development.

Currently, she is working as a lecturer in Education and Programme Officer (PO) of National Service Scheme (NSS) at Kuchinda College, located in Sambalpur, Odisha. Under her leadership, many students contribute to massive awareness in the locality with their personality development, and her journey is more than just a career - it is a masterclass in humanitarianism.

A Gesture of Kindness -

During the pandemic, the world was in pain, and many families struggled without food and were unable to afford even basic safety items like masks, which deeply touched her heart. The pain and helplessness of the needy during that difficult time moved her to act. She felt that remaining silent was not an option. With a sense of humanity and responsibility, she donated her salary to support those in need, distributed masks in her local area, and provided food to the hungry.

The NSS Impact

Mama shared that joining the National Service Scheme (NSS) during her college days played a vital role in shaping her sense of responsibility towards society and her country. NSS helped her develop leadership skills, understand rural realities, and connect deeply with the challenges faced by marginalized communities, experiences that strengthened her commitment to serving India.

Under the guidance of her mentor, the late Dr. Subrata Rani Rout, she had several opportunities to participate in NSS programmes where inspiring resource persons motivated her towards nation-building. From village-level 7-day special camps to the national-level Republic Day Camp (RDC), she learned that personality development through service to society, inspired by the ideals of Mahatma Gandhi and Swami Vivekananda, is true patriotism.

A Legacy of Quiet Courage -

Mama's dedication is a testament to the fact that true leadership does not shout; it serves. Through her social awareness initiatives, she has woven a fabric of social consciousness that will protect and provide for the region for years to come. She remains a living example of humanity in action, a reminder that while we may not be able to change the whole world at once, we can certainly change the world for the person standing right in front of us. Mama's exemplary leadership in NSS has profoundly transformed student engagement in community service, inspiring a culture of empathy, responsibility, and proactive action.

NSS Unit Achievements -

During her tenure as the Programme Officer of the NSS unit, the unit actively worked in their adopted village and carried out a wide range of community-oriented and developmental activities. Major achievements include organizing blood donation camps, plantation drives, environmental awareness programmes, health and hygiene initiatives with a special focus on women's health, and general health awareness campaigns.

Impactful Achievements -

A major milestone in her career came in 2014 when she was conferred the "Best ST Student of Odisha" award by Hon'ble Chief Minister S.J. Naveen Patnaik and received the State NSS Award the same year for her outstanding service as an NSS volunteer. In 2024, she was selected as the Contingent Leader of Odisha NSS Team at the Republic Day Parade Camp, New Delhi, a prestigious national-level representation that brought pride to both her institution and the state. She met there with Hon'ble President of India, PM, Vice President, Sports and youth affairs minister.

Community Support Initiatives -

As the lockdown confined her to her village during the COVID-19 pandemic, she felt a strong inner calling to do something meaningful for her community. Driven by this sense of responsibility towards her village and the nation, she donated her first salary and devoted herself wholeheartedly to service. Along with her family and friends, they prepared masks at home and distributed them to those in need. With the support of Sarpanch Shri Deven-dra Sahu, Anganwadi worker Smt. Santosini Padhan, and other ward members, she planned and formed a committed village-level volunteer team, empowering local youth and ensuring participation from every household and street. Together, they distributed more than 500 masks and essential food supplies, created awareness on health precautions, and her dedicated work resulted zero deaths and zero positive cases in her village.
